How to win a tender contract. Most organisations will encounter a time when they need to tender for a specific contract - it may be in order to expand and grow, or it may be to continue working with a certain supplier. In both the public and private sector, tendering is the most common way of securing work. Above all tendering is a competition, and the most economically advantageous tender (MEAT) bidder will be selected through the tendering process to work with the buyer on the contract.
